United States: USCIS to conduct additional selection of H-1B cap lottery for fiscal year (FY) 2025

The USCIS is set to conduct a supplementary selection process for the H-1B visa cap for fiscal year 2025, drawing from previously submitted registrations. While the timing is undisclosed, selected employers will be notified and given a 90-day window to apply for an H-1B visa for the chosen individuals. This round excludes the master's cap, which has met its quota, but includes both regular and master's cap-qualified registrations.

The first selection in March 2024 allowed a 90-day application period. However, due to insufficient filings to meet the annual cap, a second lottery from the unselected pool is planned. Notifications, including filing details, will be sent to selected employers' "myUSCIS" accounts. Only these employers can file H-1B petitions for FY 2025, specifically for the named individuals in the notices, with no beneficiary substitutions allowed.

Immigration trends in 2024

Home > Insights > Immigration trends in 2024

In the coming months, we will begin to see the outcomes events that will shape the biggest trends in immigration in 2024.

Among these are elections, with two billion people around the world due to cast their vote at some point this year – but there are also other factors affecting immigration around the world in 2024, including global conflict and unrest, social upheaval, the environment, and new policies that are changing how people live and work in countries not native to them.

All of these factors drive change. And while change can pose challenges, it can also create exciting opportunities for investment and development. Here, Roberta Carnaccini, our Global Director of Immigration, shares her thoughts on a year of upheaval and turmoil for immigration.
